HISTORICAL NOTES

The Nannup Timber Mill was built in 1925 after the closure of the Barrabup and Ellis Creek Mills. Previous mill owners were the Kauri Timber Company until 1963, Douglas Jones Pty Ltd, Millars and Bunnings. The original mill burnt down in 1954 and only the chimney remained. While the original mill was steam-driven, the new mill was powered by electricity. Mill cottages are located adjacent to the mill and form an integral aspect of the place.

DESCRIPTION

The Nannup Timber Mill includes a series of saw tooth sheds with a prominent, corbelled brick chimney, large circular steel incinerator, and circular timber framed and corrugated iron milling ring called "betting ring". A separately located timber framed, weatherboard and tile administration building is located at the entry to the milling yards. The timber workers cottages are located in two settlements; one to the north of Mill Street, on View Terrace, and the one to the south off a gravel drive parallel to Warren Road. The buildings are typically timber framed and weatherboard structures with gabled roofs and broken backed verandahs set behind simple picket fences, often with adjacent timber framed skillion roofed carports. Notable features include external galvanised chimney flues and simple timber framed casement windows.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Nannup Timber Mill Precinct is significant to the history of the timber industry in the south west of Western Australia and to the history of settlement of the region. The chimney constructed in 1925 is of particular significance being the only physical remnant of the original mill. The residential precinct adjacent to the mill is also significant
